- In the sentence, “الانسان كلّي”, the mind can consider three things:
 1. The Natural Universal “الكلّي الطبيعي”: The nature of human as it is (the nature of the subject without considering its universality); it exists in the instances.
 2. The Logical Universal “الكلّي المنطقي”: Only the attribute, i.e., being universal without any substance like human or stone, etc., exists in the mind.
 3. The Rational Universal “الكلّي العقلي”: The subject and the attribute together, i.e., the human as it is a universal; it exists in the mind.

- All the “كليات خمسّه” and every “جزئي” can be considered by these attributes, such as نوع طبيعي، جنس منطقي و فصل عقلي
Example: Natural species “النوع الباطني”: Human as it is human (not the universal); Logical species “النوع المنطقي”: The whole common reality of some particulars which are different only in number, in the answer to “What is it?”; Rational species “النوع العقلي”: Human as universal.
